Story Time

Away back in 1951 in the west of Ireland, a girl called Ruth was coming to her tenth birthday. She was asked to choose between a doll and a donkey. She chose the donkey and called him Willow. Ruth loved her donkey and spent many happy hours running with him in the field at the back of the house. She brought treats in her pocket for him, maybe a carrot or an apple or sometimes a few sugar lumps, and Willow would run to greet her when he saw her climbing over the gate.

Now there was one thing Willow did not like; he didn't like it when Ruth tried to get up on his back. Every time she tried, he kicked up his heels, and down she came. But Ruth's Daddy had a special way to hold the little donkey's nose so that he would behave properly, and Ruth enjoyed her donkey rides around the field.

One day a family friend, Eddie, came to visit.

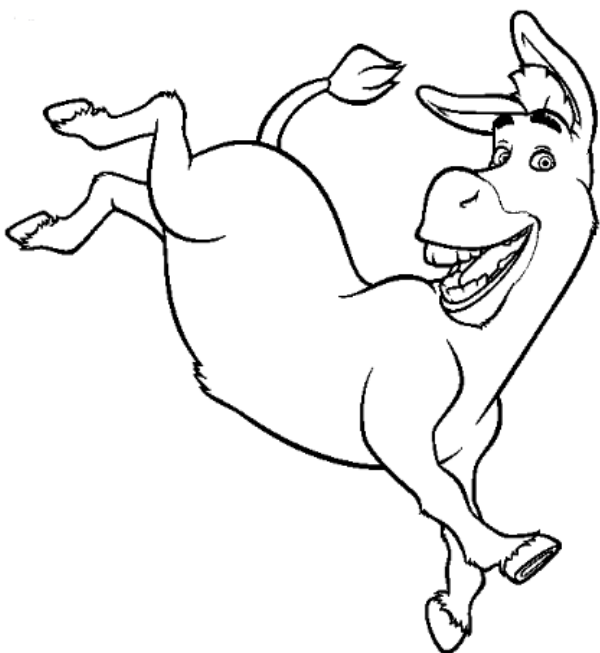

"Come and see my donkey," said Ruth.

"Oh, he's lovely," said Eddie, "do you ride on his back?"

"I do," answered Ruth, "but you will need to hold his nose like this so that he won't throw me off." And Ruth showed him how to hold Willow's nose properly.

"OK," said Eddie, and away they went.

But Eddie didn't like the feel of the donkey's slimy, wet nose, so he didn't hold it tight at all. It just looked as if he was holding it properly. Of course the donkey knew it and after a few steps, up went his heels and poor Ruth went flying over the donkey's head and landed on her face on the hard ground. Eddie got a terrible fright and carried Ruth in to the little farmhouse where she was cared for until she recovered.

This story reminds us of how we can pretend to be doing things right. Ruth told Eddie how to hold the donkey properly, Eddie looked as if he was holding the donkey right, but he knew that he was only pretending.

God knows what we think of Him and of His Son. We can all look right and do the right things on the outside, but we must remember that God knows our hearts.

Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart.
